Fishtown heats up with this year's chili cookoff

Mouth-watering. The 5th annual Chili Cookoff brought together 25 restaurants and resident chefs to compete.

Critic's choice

Meat Sweats' award-winning (beanless) recipe:

- 40 pounds of meat: brisket and tri-tip, smoke 15 lbs of brisket with hickory and pecan. Dice and sear, rest on flat top.
- Prepare lime-cilantro crema.
- Roast poblanos, habaneros, serranos, and jalapeno peppers.
- Mix in six-gallon pot with garlic, dill and Himalayan sea salt.
- Add tortilla strips

It seems like an odd ritual: getting together to compete over who can cook up the spiciest, most savory and delicious chili.

But in Fishtown, that's how locals get down.

Dan Chambers, Chad Crowther and Paul Lile, collectively known as the "Meat Sweats," spent 72 hours preparing their Texas-style beanless chili, which took home the Critic's Choice award in the resident chefs category at the 5th annual Chili Cookoff of the Fishtown Neighbors Association.

"What separated our chili from the others was the smoke," said Chambers, who was in charge of smoking 15 pounds of brisket with hickory and pecans for eight hours.

"Smoky and sweet, with a little bit of heat," was how he described their award-winning flavor.

"We don't have any left to take home, but that's the point, we wanted to share it," said Crowther, who went to culinary school but does not work as a chef currently.

Chili chefs from Lloyd's Whiskey Bar took home the first place award in the People's Choice competition for the second year in a row.

Fishtown's not the only neighborhood to hold a chili cookoff, but their competition, which features chili by 25 chefs, is one of the fastest-growing in the area. This year's event packed the meeting space at 2424 Studios on East York Street and had the highest pre-sales ever.

"At this point it's fully established itself as something the FNA does," said Jill Betters. "I talked to all of the chefs and they were all having a good time."

Treats. Pretzel Factory may go global

Philly Pretzel Factory has its sights set high.

The company recently announced plans to open 500 Pretzel Factory shops nationwide by 2020, including one in all 50 states, according to the Philadelphia Business Journal.

They currently have 148 locations in 10 factories and are known for high-quality pretzels and dips like Sugary Buttercreme.

Chief Development Officer Tom Monaghan told the Journal that after spreading nationwide, the company will look at "international opportunities."

Philly Pretzel Factory could be opening up shops in Europe, Canada and Asia as early as 2016, Monaghan said. METRO

Cop faces dismissal over assault and DUI charges

A 26-year-old Philly cop who was discovered driving his patrol car drunk and then attacked a supervisor now faces assault and driving under the influence charges and will be suspended from the force.

Darryl Cathey, a six-year veteran of the force assigned to the 12th District, was spotted after midnight on Saturday driving his marked police car with three flat tires on the 6500 block of Woodland Avenue.

"As he began a conversation with Cathey, the supervisor observed his bloodshot eyes and he smelled an odor of alcohol on his breath; furthermore, Cathey indicated he did not know that he was operating his police vehicle on the rims with flattened tires," the police report states. METRO

AT WAR WITH THE POTHOLES

Street talk

DAVE WARNER
METRO COLUMNIST/ VETERAN NEWSMAN
Dave Warner tackles Philadelphia metropolitan issues. Email Dave at EditExpress@verizon.net.

Few things are more universally reviled than the simple pothole, a common annoyance that is mostly unnoticeable — until you hit one.

Take the case of John Tyszka, a suburban accountant, who in two years has spent nearly $1,000 on bent wheels and damaged tires.

His last tangle with a pothole, which the pothole won, came on a street near his Jenkintown home about three weeks ago, but the pain didn't begin right away.

He drove the car to the local SEPTA station the next morning, parked it and when he returned that night in the 20-degree chill the tire was flat.

He had to pay to replace the damaged tire and repair the wheel rim.

That followed a mishap last year when a Schuylkill Expressway canyon cracked a wheel rim and ruined a tire.

"It feels like they should be more properly maintained," Tyszka said in a comment on roads that could be echoed by thousands.

In fact, AAA Mid-Atlantic can count the ways.

"So far this March, AAA Mid-Atlantic has rescued over 9,000 motorists with flat tires in the Philadelphia five-county area, up 51 percent over the same period last year, a strong indicator that this pothole season has been much worse than last season," said Jana L. Tidwell, manager of public and government affairs for AAA.

Why can't we make roads that would not be so prone to potholes?

Years ago, I posed that question to an expert in another city.

He said we could build them to last longer, but we wouldn't want to pay for them.

Rebecca S. McDaniel, a professor at Purdue University who knows her potholes, chuckled a bit when she heard that anecdote.

A car passes a deep pothole on a South Philadelphia street. / CHARLES MOSTOLLER

Quoted

"Experts nationwide — or at least in the states that have a real winter — have for decades been blaming the old freeze-thaw cycle for potholes."

"I think that's still true," said McDaniel, who is the technical director of the North Central Superpave Center at Purdue, in West Lafayette, Indiana.

Experts nationwide — or at least in the states that have a real winter — have for decades been blaming the old freeze-thaw cycle for potholes.

Cracks begin in the surface, be it asphalt or concrete, and water seeps in.

When water freezes it expands, and — voila! — a pothole is born.

Actually, it can get worse than that, says our favorite pothole professor.

The water can seep through that surface crack and go through the pavement into the soil below.

"Wet soil isn't as strong as dry soil, so the pavement kind of loses support," she says.

You might want to know that the better the aggregate in asphalt and concrete, the better the chance that things will go more smoothly.

Some aggregate, which is a fancy name for stones, is resistant to moisture, and some isn't. Some are more resistant to cracking than others.

Some places can afford the high-price spread and some can't. McDaniel guesstimates that depending on the road condition, it may double the cost.

Which brings us back to this: We could build them better, but we might not want to pay for them.

Trial to start for six accused cops

Dirty dealings. The case threatens to spark a wave of civil litigation against the city.

The trial of six former Philadelphia narcotics officers accused of robbing drug dealers in a 42-page indictment that read like a script for a Hollywood action movie is expected to begin in federal court today.

Five of the six officers face life sentences for their participation in what authorities say is a corrupt organization whose members dangled a drug dealer from an 18th-story balcony to get him to divulge the password to his computer. Others were beaten with metal bars, according to court documents, while others were kicked in the teeth by officers.

The officers, Perry Betts, Thomas Liciardello, Linwood Norman, Brian Reynolds, John Speiser and Michael Spicer, were taken into custody in July. All but Liciardello, the accused ringleader, have been out on bail.

Defense attorneys declined to comment on the case, citing a gag order. But court filings indicate that lawyers plan to challenge the credibility of witnesses, many of whom are criminals with unsavory pasts.

That list includes Officer Jeffrey Walker, a police officer who planted cocaine on a drug dealer as a ruse to steal the dealer's house keys. He then stole $15,000 from the man's home in a 2013 sting orchestrated by an FBI informant. Walker pleaded guilty last year, but agreed to testify against these officers.

To convict the former officers on the most serious charges under racketeering and corrupt organizations, prosecutors have presented a list of more than 100 potential witnesses, along with bank records, credit card statements and casino receipts. They also plan to present texts between Walker and Liciardello made after Walker became an informant, and a recorded conversation between Liciardello, Reynolds and an FBI informant.

Consequences

All of the men except Norman were removed from the Narcotics Field Unit in 2012 after District Attorney Seth Williams wrote a letter saying he couldn't rely on their testimony.

- Hundreds of drug cases have been withdrawn in the wake of that letter.

1 Crash pilot was planning big gesture: Paper

The co-pilot suspected of deliberately crashing an airliner, killing 150 people, had told his girlfriend he was planning a spectacular gesture so "everyone will know my name," a German daily said on Saturday.

The Bild newspaper published an interview with a woman who said she had a relationship in 2014 with Andreas Lubitz, the man French prosecutors believe locked himself alone in the cockpit of the Germanwings Airbus on Tuesday and steered it into the French Alps, killing all on board.

"When I heard about the crash, I remembered a sentence ... he said: 'One day I'll do something that will change the system, and then everyone will know my name and remember it,'" said the woman, a flight attendant the paper gave the pseudonym of Maria W.

"I didn't know what he meant by that at the time, but now it's obvious," she said. "He did it because he realized that, due to his health problems, his big dream of working at Lufthansa, of a having job as a pilot and as a pilot on long-distance flights, was nearly impossible."

"He never talked much about his illness, only that he was in psychiatric treatment," she told the paper, adding they finally broke up because she was afraid of him. REUTERS

2 Four-year-old rides bus alone in search of slushie

A 4-year-old Pennsylvania girl surprised a driver and passengers when she boarded a bus alone in the middle of the night on a quest for a sugary slushy, transportation officials said.

Surveillance footage shows the girl, bundled up in all purple, boarding a Philadelphia bus at 3 a.m. on Friday.

The girl, who appeared cheerful as she stretched and dangled her boots off her seat, told bus riders that she wanted to get a slushie, Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority spokeswoman Kristin Geiger said. REUTERS

3 Singapore bids farewell to founding father Lee

Grieving Singaporeans were joined by world leaders on Sunday to pay their final respects to the country's first prime minister, Lee Kuan Yew, as the nation came to a near-halt to honor its "founding father."

Tens of thousands of people waving flags braved heavy rain and lined the streets to catch a last glimpse of Lee as his coffin was taken by gun carriage on a procession through the streets of the country he helped build to his state funeral. REUTERS

4 Seven shot at spring break party in Florida

Three college students were among seven people shot, several critically injured, early Saturday morning at a raucous spring break party in Panama City Beach, Florida, and the suspected shooter was taken into custody, local police said.

Shortly before 1 a.m., officers were called to a building near the beach, where they found the victims, three of whom are students at Alabama A&M University, the Bay County Sheriff's office said in an electronic statement. A .40-caliber handgun was found in the backyard. REUTERS

5 Air Canada flight slides off Halifax runway

An Air Canada plane slid off a runway and suffered heavy damage while landing in the east coast city of Halifax on Sunday, sending more than 20 passengers and crew to the hospital with non-life-threatening injuries. The incident happened shortly after midnight. The airline said in an update on Sunday afternoon that all but one of those admitted to hospitals had been released.

"We at Air Canada are greatly relieved that no one was critically injured. Yet we fully appreciate this has been a very unsettling experience," Air Canada Chief Operating Officer Klaus Goersch said in a statement. REUTERS

CHAPTER SIX
MRS. BAKER

I take the bright orange pig from the shelf and hand it to the girl. All of the crocheted animals are twenty apiece, but I give her the pig after hearing what it's for. I remember when my oldest went off to college and how hard it was for the younger ones. I'm seeing it again with the grandkids. Besides, crocheting is more of a hobby than a business. My husband always jokes that I lose money every year because I give so many away. I joke that we lose money every year because he can't leave the festival food alone. I don't blame him, though, we've been here all day. I'm sure he's hungry or thirsty, or just itching to get up and leave the tent, so I hand him the twenty to go and find us a snack. He takes it and makes his way to a food vendor a few booths away.

Indiana governor defends religious freedom law

Republican. Mike Pence is feeling the heat as Boycott Indiana campaign grows.

He's willing to "clarify" it — but Indiana's controversial Religious Freedom Restoration Act will continue to be the law of the land in the Hoosier State, its governor, Mike Pence insists.

The law legalizes discrimination against gays, opponents say, by offering protections to Indiana residents and businesses against doing something that violates their religious principles.

"We're not going to change the law," Pence said on ABC's "This Week with George Stephanopoulos."

Gov. Mike Pence / GETTY IMAGES

Quoted

"It should be easy for leaders in this country to stand up and say that it is wrong to discriminate against people just because of who they love."

Spokesman for President Obama

"But if the general assembly in Indiana sends me a bill that adds a section that reiterates and amplifies and clarifies what the law really is … than I'm open to that."

Business groups have threatened to pull jobs from the state since Pence, a Republican, signed the RFRA into law Thursday.

Pence noted that Bill Clinton, a Democrat, signed a similar measure to prevent the government from infringing on an individual's religious beliefs in 1993. But gay legal groups note Indiana's new law is more stringent.

The White House also weighed in. "If you have to go back two decades to try to justify something that you're doing today, it may raise some questions about the wisdom of what you're doing," said a spokesman for President Barack Obama. JOHN OSWALD, METRO

Two bodies found at NYC explosion site

Search. The first body was recovered at about 1 p.m. and the second two hours later, police said.

Twenty-two people were injured — four critically — in the explosion, police said. / MILES DIXON, METRO

Rescue crews with cadaver dogs pulled two bodies Sunday from the rubble of the East Village gas explosion that destroyed four New York City apartment buildings and injured 22 people, police said.

One of the two bodies has been identified as Nicholas Figueroa, 23, who was with a co-worker inside Sushi Park when the buildings along Second Avenue blew up.

A second man, Moises Lucon, 26, is also missing. It was not immediately clear if his was the second body that was recovered.

Figueroa's relatives, holding white roses, were standing vigil behind a barrier at St. Mark's Place when the finds were made.

In all, 11 buildings were evacuated because of the explosion, leaving residents of 144 apartments needing places to stay. Investigators are looking into whether gas and plumbing work being done privately in one building led to the explosion.

Firefighters are digging their way toward the building basement where the explosion originated.

The basement could hold the key to the cause of the devastation, which Mayor Bill de Blasio on Friday said was possibly tied to someone "inappropriately" tapping into a gas line.

It could be a week of careful digging through twisted debris, bricks and splintered wood before the basement is reached, authorities said.

One-year crew arrives on the space station

Research. Scientists are interested in seeing how the human body fares during longer stays in space.

NASA astronaut Scott Kelly is seen inside a Soyuz simulator at the Gagarin Cosmonaut Training Center. / REX USA

NASA astronaut Scott Kelly and Mikhail Kornienko and Gennady Padalka of the Russian Federal Space Agency (Roscosmos) joined their Expedition 43 crewmates when the hatches between the Soyuz TMA-16M spacecraft and the International Space Station opened. Kelly and Kornienko will spend about a year on the space station to better understand how the human body reacts and adapts to the harsh environment of space.

Kelly and Kornienko will spend about a year on the space station to better understand how the human body reacts and adapts to the harsh environment of space. Data from the one-year mission will be used to determine whether there are ways to further reduce the risks on future long-duration missions to an asteroid and eventually Mars.

During the expedition, both a U.S. and a Russian cargo resupply vehicle will arrive at the station, bringing several tons of food, fuel and supplies as well as a host of new science investigations.

Commander Terry Virts and flight engineers Anton Shkaplerov and Samantha Cristoforetti will return home in May 2015. NASA/REUTERS

Researchers to investigate the effects of long space stays

Scientists are interested in seeing how the human body fares during longer stays in space, as the United States and other countries begin planning for multiyear missions to Mars. In addition to more exposure to radiation, astronauts experience bone and muscle loss and changes in their cardiovascular, immune and other systems. Scott Kelly and Mikhail Kornienko will participate in a battery of experiments before, during and after their flight to assess psychological and physiological changes from being in microgravity for a year. A third participant is Kelly's identical twin brother, Mark Kelly, a former NASA astronaut who will serve as a ground-based subject. REUTERS

Faithful wave fronds at Pope Francis

Pope Francis led the world's Roman Catholics in Palm Sunday celebrations by paying tribute to those killed for their faith, a reference to the victims of Islamic State militants. Francis, who earlier this month began the third year of his papacy, presided over a colorful procession in St. Peter's Square that commemorated the day the Bible says people of Jerusalem welcomed Jesus days before he was crucified. The Soho House's 'No Kardashian' rule is the best thing ever

We don't serve your kind here. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

I thought I wanted a Soho House membership before, but now I really, really want one. The private club's Los Angeles outpost recently celebrated its fifth birthday, and to mark the occasion a former membership director is spilling the beans on which big names have been turned away from its cushy confines. "We denied access to every Real Housewife who applied," Tim Geary tells the Hollywood Reporter. "Kim Kardashian has unsuccessfully tried numerous times. Kobe Bryant showed up and chose not to join. We didn't let him up. There was debate over Britney Spears. Not sure how that played out. We tried not to give membership to people who would fuel paparazzi or bring press." This place sounds amazing.

Taylor Swift dating rumors are back

It's been a hot minute since we've had any speculation about Taylor Swift's love life, and if that's had you feeling deprived I've got some good news for you. Last week, Swift was spotted "getting snuggly" with superstar DJ and producer Calvin Harris at a Kenny Chesney concert in Nashville, and sources say they've been spending time together a lot before then as well, having first met last month at the Brit Awards. "He is taken with her. They connected properly at the Brits, and it's been going on since then," a source says, according to Us Weekly. "It's been going on a few weeks. They actually make a great couple. They are just getting to know each other and we'll see what happens." And Harris is clearly a good sport — or really, really into Swift — because come on, a Kenny Chesney concert? That's dedication.

This Sacha Baron Cohen movie news is confounding

Sorry, Queen fans, those reports about Sacha Baron Cohen re-joining the planned Freddie Mercury biopic were actually not that accurate. It turns out the band's manager, Jim Beach, was just joking when he said Cohen was back onboard, guitarist Brian May clarifies. Beach said "that Sacha Baron Cohen had been re-engaged to write, produce and direct the film, as well as starring in all four major roles," May writes. "I'm afraid some folks might have taken it seriously." Cohen was initially attached to play the iconic singer for the project starting in 2007 but officially bowed out in 2013.

We are not the champions after all.

Recasting 'Hamlet'

Theater. Zainab Jah once played mad Ophelia. Now she's back as the lonely prince.

One of the inspirations for the Wilma Theater's take on "Hamlet" was Polish director Andrzej Wajda's 1989 production, which cast actress Teresa Budzisz-Krzyzanowska in the title role.

Zainab Jah watched a film of that production during her own preparation for the role and says, "I very quickly forgot I was looking at a woman and got caught up in what the character was going through. It's so beautifully told, the story of this person's condition, this loneliness and isolation that the character of Hamlet was feeling."

Jah's easy acclimation to the non-traditional casting proved encouraging as she faced the daunting prospect of portraying the Danish prince. A self-described "Shakespeare nerd" whose grandmother, an English teacher, insisted she read the Bard as a child, the London-born, Sierra Leone-raised actress had never imagined that she might play Hamlet one day.

"I've loved the part ever since I read it when I was a teenager," she says, "but it never occurred to me that I would ever play Hamlet. It's just not something you ever think is a possibility as a female, much less a black female."

Wilma artistic director Blanka Zizka determined that Jah would be her Hamlet after seeing the actress in the company's 2013 production of Danai Gurira's play "The Convert." When Zizka approached her with the idea, though, Jah says her instinct was to refuse. "I was shocked, and my knee-jerk reaction was, 'No.' But Blanka wouldn't take no for an answer. I told her I was terrified at the idea, and she said, 'That's exactly why you should do it.'"

Jah says the experience has been surreal, especially given the fact that she's played Ophelia in the past and occasionally feels as if she's talking to herself in scenes between the two characters.

Zizka's take on Shakespeare's classic is freed from a specific time period, with a set designed by Matt Saunders, covered in graffiti by street artist Cera.

Sex, music and

Tove Lo's breakup remedy: weed, Twinkies and sex clubs.
GETTY IMAGES

Interview. She may have a penchant for bad habits, but that only makes things interesting.

With "Habits" reaching number one on the Billboard charts and an arena tour with Katy Perry behind her, all eyes are on Tove Lo, pop's newest breakthrough artist. We talk to the Swedish electro-pop singer about the dark side of relationships and moving on after getting her heart broken.

On having great, no-strings-attached sex:
"I've had a lot of sex without hoping it will turn into love. I can definitely separate the two. But when you are in love with someone, and you have sex, it's always better. But [good sex] can definitely cloud your judgment. 'Talking Body' is about that. If you start off having great sex, things tend to last longer than if you started by going out on a date, and things just don't click."

The best revenge on an ex:
"It's hard when you've been hurt. All you want is for the other person to be hurt as well. But the best revenge is just to not care anymore. I've been on the other side of it, wanting [my ex] back, and he was like, 'No, you f—ed it up.' That was probably the hardest feeling for me because I felt like I ruined something really good, and now I can't fix it."

Relationships versus single life:
"I like being single more, but somehow I always end up in a relationship. I love being in love. I love

SOUTHEASTERN PENNSYLVANIA TRANSPORTATION AUTHORITY
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
FISCAL YEAR 2016 CAPITAL BUDGET

I. The Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority (SEPTA) will conduct public hearings in the SEPTA Board Room at SEPTA Headquarters, 1234 Market Street, Mezzanine Level, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19107, at 11:30 A.M. and 5:00 P.M., on Tuesday, April 28, 2015. The purpose of the hearing is to consider the Authority's proposed Fiscal Year 2016 Capital Budget and Fiscal Years 2016-2027 Capital Program and the projects contained therein for which financial assistance is being sought. The total amount of federal and state funds to be received in Fiscal Year 2016 will be determined at the completion of the federal and state budget processes. SEPTA proposes to submit to its funding agencies a program of projects for funding consideration. SEPTA's final federal Section 5307 Program of Projects will be made available through the Delaware Valley Regional Planning Commission's Transportation Improvement Program (TIP) and in conjunction with the DVRPC's Public Involvement Process for the TIP.

II. At the hearings, SEPTA will afford an opportunity for interested persons or agencies to be heard with respect to the social, economic and environmental aspects of the projects. Interested persons may submit orally, or in writing, evidence and recommendations. Speakers for the morning and evening sessions must register by 12:30 PM and 5:30 PM, respectively, on the day of the Public Hearings.

III. Persons wishing to file written comments may forward them to the Director of the Capital Budget and Grant Development Department, 9th Floor, 1234 Market Street, Philadelphia, PA 19107-3780. Comments must be received by May 4, 2015, so that they may be forwarded to the Hearing Examiner. Comments may also be sent via email to capbudget@septa.org.

IV. Individuals in need of a sign language interpreter should contact the Director of the Capital Budget and Grant Development Department, at the address listed above by April 14, 2015.

V. An audio version of the public hearing notice and summary will be available through the Associated Services for the Blind's website at www.asb.org and at the office of the Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, 919 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, PA 19107.

VI. On or about March 30, 2015, members of the public may obtain a copy of the proposed Capital Budget and Program at SEPTA's website www.septa.org or by requesting, in writing, a copy from the Director of the Capital Budget and Grant Development Department at the address listed above.

Intense relationships

On writing about the dark side of love instead of the happy parts

"I've only really had intense relationships. It's like all you see is that other person. And you also go crazy. I've never had this, 'We went out a few times and started liking each other, then we fell in love, and now we're a couple.' I think those relationships probably last longer because you're OK with it not always being great, and you don't make a crazy storm out of everything if something feels a little wrong."

the very beginning of a relationship, when things aren't defined, and you're just having a great time together. When you're a couple, sometimes there's all these demands that come with it like, 'Oh, now that we're a couple, you can't do that.' But it becomes really beautiful when you show your flaws. I think it's easier to be single, but it's definitely worth it to be in a relationship when you really love someone."

On falling in love again: "I'm in a really great relationship right now, and it's the first time I feel like it's easy. I'm really in love with him, and we have a great time. He gets me and I get him. My next album is maybe going to be a little happier I think."

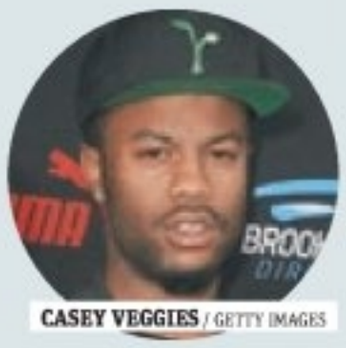
SXSW rap standout

Casey Veggies



CASEY VEGGIES / GETTY IMAGES

Casey Veggies has released seven mixtapes, performed with Kendrick Lamar and collaborated with Juicy J and Rockie Fresh (to name a few) — all before he turned 21. His new single "Backflip" featuring YG and Iamsu! already has over one million views on YouTube. We catch up with him after his packed showcase at SXSW:

"Backflip" is definitely your biggest single to date. What inspired the song?
The song is inspired just by the lifestyle we live, being young and growing up in L.A. It really speaks to the young go-getter and the culture, what [happens] on a daily basis.

If that's true, I can't even imagine what your 21st birthday was like.
The week of my 21st birthday was the week we released the original version of "Backflip." I hosted eight clubs and parties that week, so I had eight birthday parties. Every club my friends and I went to, we gave the DJ "Backflip," and I performed it. A few weeks later, YG contacted me and was like, "Man, that song is crazy. I gotta jump on it."

How do you decide whom to collaborate with?
For me, it's always natural. With "Backflip," Iamsu! and I have known each other for years, but we had never worked on a song together. ... I always wanted to make a record that I could hear in the club and that everyone could have a good time to. I think I accomplished that perfectly with "Backflip."

Interview. Jennifer Lawrence tells us about her other Bradley Cooper film, the one where she has an eagle.

In between the David O. Russell films "Silver Linings Playbook" and "American Hustle," Jennifer Lawrence reunited with Bradley Cooper for a very different film. "Serena" is a period saga that turns the pair into a husband and wife, the former as a timber company magnate in Depression-era North Carolina, and she is an independent and self-determined woman in an age that was unsympathetic to those like her.

Was working with animals tricky? Did you have to learn how to ride a horse?

I think I can do it pretty well, but I had to learn separately how to handle an eagle. It's so fascinating to work with an animal that has literally no affection in its eyes at all; it's only looking at what it can eat. It's a fascinating creature to hold on your arm, this thing that only kills, and it's terrifying because its talons are huge. The eagle, in a lot of ways, is an embodiment of Serena: taken from its native place and trained enough but then set free to wreak havoc and then brought home again. The eagle is a good symbol.

Bonus question

In one of your interviews, you said that you don't know where your Oscar statue is. Have you found it?

Yes, my mother has it! I wanted to hide it, but she thinks that it has to be visible. I didn't like that idea so much. It's as if people come to visit me just to stare at it. But we have found a compromise: "Oscar" is now living in my parents' house. They've put it on the piano.

HOW TO GET AHEAD

ISTOCK

Will students soon be interviewing on video for their first jobs?

Are you ready for your close-up?

Molly Congdon
@MetroPhilly
letters@metro.us

Online interviews will cut down on the expense and time of traveling for busy students. ISTOCK

For generations of college seniors, those all-important first job interviews have traditionally followed the same script: Applicants put on their best suits, print out their résumés that highlight their internships and part-time jobs and sit anxiously with their portfolios in an office waiting room.

But one entrepreneur is betting those days will soon be over. Chris Young is the CEO and founder of Async Interview, which facilitates job interviews using video.

Nervous about the prospect of interviewing on camera for your dream job? We asked Young for his suggestions on how to prepare:

Don't complicate your life

"Use a computer instead of a tablet or smartphone," Young says. "It will give you better quality, and you won't have to awkwardly hold anything."

Top to bottom

Fold those flannel pajama pants, and put them back in the drawer. "Be sure to dress from head to toe, not just from the waist up," he says. "This is not a no-pants interview; sometimes they may be able to see what you are wearing below the waist."

Don't be a silhouette

Were you thinking about sitting in front of that window? Think again. "If you sit in front of a light, the recruiter won't be able to see your face," Young says. "You want all of the light in front of you, shining on your face."

Stick it

There is one major advantage to a teleconference: "Tape notes to your wall," Young suggests. "You can list certain talking points that you'd like to bring up no matter what questions are asked."

Stay focused

Remember there are no do-overs in interviews. "It's a simulated environment, and you're unable to re-record responses," Young says. "When the interview starts, that's it. You can't say, 'Hold on, let me start over again.'"

Practice, practice, practice

"Get comfortable with being onscreen," Young says. "Take advantage of all the practice you can get. Skype with your mom or a friend and have them ask you potential interview questions."

The SAT will be revised next year. ISTOCK

Are you ready for the new SAT?

The new, revised SAT exam will be rolled out in exactly a year, and one tutoring specialist has a message for all students planning to take it: You're in for a big (and unpleasant) surprise.

"The College Board [which administers the exam] has gone out of its way to make the redesigned SAT prep-proof," says Ray Huntington, the founder and CEO of Huntington Learning Center, a tutoring and test-prep company. "If a student depends on tricks and shortcuts, they aren't going to do well."

Huntington notes that while many students and parents have begun to ask him about studying for the new SAT, he expects the public at large to be caught off guard. Here's how to get ready:

Build a strong foundation

"In order to do well in math on the new test, you have to be a good reader," says Huntington, who has been studying the sample questions that have been released so far. "Many of the math problems will have a backstory."

Strengthen your writing skills

This is also true of the essay section. "The student will now have to understand the author's argument and verbalize what that argument is," he notes. "Many students will end up summarizing the passage instead of analyzing it."

LAKSHMI GANDHI

Get comfortable with history

Huntington also warns that the passages in the verbal section will be much more complicated than what students are used to. "The redesigned SAT will require historical passages as well as passages based on the global conversation," he explains.

Netanyahu right about Iran

Re: 'McCain should give bloody dispute more respect' (Metro, March 25) I agree with the recent letter writer who said that we must show respect to President Obama. However, the letter writer made a very disrespectful remark about Sen. John McCain "carrying water for Israel." When you consider the fact that some of Iran's leaders have called for the destruction of Israel, you cannot blame Sen. McCain and Prime Minister Netanyahu for being concerned about Israel's safety. I have disagreed with Netanyahu when it comes to his settlement policy and his reluctance to establish a Palestinian state. However, when it comes to his warnings about Iran, he (and McCain) are completely in the right.

Re: 'Cruz smart to look into Obamacare' (Metro, March 27-29) In New York state, my health insurance premium was cut by almost two-thirds when I went from private insurance to coverage provided via New York State of Health. My first-hand experience is that I am extremely happy with Obamacare, but perhaps since Texas has one of the highest rates of uninsured in the nation due to its resistance to the Affordable Care Act, Sen. Cruz's Texas constituents may not be as happy as I am.

Eagles are likely to promote from within

The story of the Eagles' offseason has been new faces arriving and familiar faces departing. Finding replacements for several players will fall to competitions between returning backups and less-heralded free-agent signings. LUKE MILLER

Is Brandon Boykin too short to start at cornerback in the NFL? / GETTY IMAGES

Cornerback

One of the biggest position battles will be for cornerback opposite marquee signing Byron Maxwell. New arrival Walter Thurmond will compete with Nolan Carroll and Brandon Boykin.

Thurmond comes to the Eagles after a lost season with the Giants. He tore a pectoral muscle in the second game of the season after signing a one-year deal. Before that, he played primarily as the nickel cornerback for Seattle. Thurmond has signed another one-year deal with the Eagles. Like many of the team's acquisitions this offseason, staying healthy will be one of the biggest hurdles for Thurmond. Since entering the league he has yet to play a full season.

Carroll started 12 games for the Dolphins in 2013 and contributed two sacks and three interceptions. In 2014, he was unable to wrest one of the starting spots from Cary Williams or Bradley Fletcher. He still played in every game, often in dime packages.

Boykin has played nickel corner since being drafted in 2012. Despite performing well there, he was not used as an alternative when the starters' effectiveness fell off a cliff last season. There is speculation that reluctance to start Boykin is due to his height (5-foot-9.)

Chip Kelly denied that the team only sees Boykin as a nickel corner last week at the NFL owner's meetings: "Brandon plays outside every day in practice."

Safety

Jaylen Watkins is a wild-card at cornerback and Nate Allen's vacated safety position.

As a rookie, Watkins only appeared in four games. He saw extended action in the season finale.

Earl Wolff is another contender at safety. Wolff battled injuries in 2014 after a promising rookie year in 2013.

Wide receiver

The competition to replace Jeremy Maclin at wide receiver has well-known contestants. What is less easy to see is any receiver replacing Maclin's 1,318 yards all on their own.

It is more likely that opportunities in the passing game will be spread among the returning receivers and increasingly among the team's tight ends and running backs.

It seems safe to say the Eagles expect a big step this year from second-year receiver Josh Huff. Huff only caught eight passes as a rookie but his kickoff-return touchdown showed his ability to make defenders miss after the catch.

Darren Sproles could see more receptions now that DeMarco Murray and Ryan Mathews have arrived.

Last year options were limited by reliance on Sproles as the backup running back. Kelly has called Sproles a Swiss-army knife and said, "We need to get him on the field more."

Utley goes deep twice

Chase Utley hit his first two homers of the spring against the Tigers in a 4-4 spring training tie Sunday. Both home runs came against Detroit's starter, Anibal Sanchez. After three solid innings of work for the Phils, Aaron Harang gave up two homers of his own, exiting the game after five and a third frames. Zach Eflin, a prospect acquired in the Jimmy Rollins trade, will make his debut with the squad Monday.

Phillies cut Cuban hurler Alfredo-Gonzalez

Alfredo-Gonzalez / GETTY IMAGES

The Phillies had high hopes when they inked Cuban defected Miguel Alfredo-Gonzalez an year and a half ago, but after another lackluster spring, the pitcher received yet another demotion.

The Phillies first had an agreement with the pitcher for $48 million, but the deal was called off after concerns were raised about the condition of his shoulder after an exam. The Phillies struck an agreement for three years and $12 million in September 2013.

He is expected to open the season in the rotation with Triple-A Lehigh Valley.

MAG was the headliner of a long list of cuts by the Phillies on Sunday, cutting the roster at camp down to 36 players.

By opening day, which is exactly a week away against the Red Sox on April 6, the team must be beneath the 25-man threshold.

Reliever Hector Neris was optioned to the minors as well as pitcher Paul Clemens, catcher Koyie Hill, first baseman Chris McGuinness and infielder Chris Nelson. EVAN MACY

76ers have very quick turnaround

After the 76ers walked off the floor from their afternoon game against the Cavaliers, they didn't have much time to do anything but travel to their next game.

After returning home from a West Coast swing for one game and then traveling to Cleveland Sunday, Philly is hopping on a plane to return home to face the Lakers at home Monday at 7 p.m.

Sixers center and rookie Nerlens Noel is playing his best basketball of the season, and is starting to earn the respect of many Rookie of the Year voters. His presence on the court alone Monday will be reason enough to tune in. EVAN MACY

No. 7 Michigan State stuns Louisville

The Final Four officially has a Cinderella. A day after powerhouse No. 1 seeds Kentucky and Wisconsin punched their Final Four tickets, No. 7 Michigan State pushed No. 4 Louisville to overtime and broke away en route to an improbable 76-70 win. Spartans coach Tom Izzo has now become the first coach in NCAA history to lead a sub-No. 5 seed to three Final Fours. It is Izzo's seventh trip overall. EVAN MACY

Flyers' Raffl provides versatility to top line

NHL. The Flyers have had a rough year, but their top forward line has become one of the best in the NHL.

While Craig Berube has used versatile Michael Raffl on all four lines over the last two years, the Flyers coach feels he may have found him a permanent home for at least the rest of the year on the top line.

Paired with captain Claude Giroux and Jakub Voracek in March, the Austrian has caught fire at the end of the season. Raffl has four goals in his last five games, including scoring his 20th in just 61 games during Saturday's 3-2 shootout loss to the San Jose Sharks.

The forward, who signed as a free agent out of Europe with the Flyers before last year, had nine goals in 68 games a year ago.

"Raffl seems to really sit well with those two guys," Berube said. "They have good chemistry. I think he really keeps it simple and plays a straight-line game, and that's what [Giroux and Voracek] need. They need a guy to play a straight-line game and not a cute game because they are going to do that."

For most of the season, Berube put Brayden Schenn on the first line. However, with Giroux and Voracek, and nearly the entire team, in a scoring funk, Berube juggled his top three lines and moved Raffl alongside his two all-stars earlier this month.

Since his arrival, both players have regained their scoring touch and through

Quoted

"He's a very strong guy and that shows on the ice in the battles and the way he skates ... and that makes me and [Giroux] better players."

Jakub Voracek on Michael Raffl

Saturday's games Voracek was two points behind Sidney Crosby for the scoring title. This is not the first time Raffl has sparked Giroux and Voracek out of a slump. The two were scuffling last season until Raffl joined them.

"He's a good player and he really helps our line," Voracek said. "That's why we've had so much success this year, not only because of him but he's a big part of it."

Raffl can't put his finger on why they have clicked so well.

"[That's a] hard question to answer," Raffl said. "I guess I just try to keep it simple, get the puck in their hands, create some room out there and get to the net."

The basic approach is working and it has allowed the team's most nomadic player to remain in one spot for the final six games of the year.

"The biggest thing Michael has done is he's learned to get to the net better and stick around the net better," Berube said. "He knows the puck is eventually going to get to him, playing with those two guys, and he's done a better job of it."

WE CELEBRATE THE LIFE OF DR. DAVID BRESLER

David A. Bresler DDS, 61, died March 21, 2015, in Philadelphia, PA from unexpected surgical complications, with his family by his side.

He was born August 25, 1953 in Philadelphia to Kalia and Dr. R. Ralph Bresler.

David graduated from Abington High School in 1971. He completed his undergraduate education at Temple University and continued his graduate education at Temple University School of Dentistry. Dr. Bresler completed a residency program in Pediatric Dentistry at St. Christopher's Hospital for Children from 1979-1981.

David's father taught him many important lessons but three in particular paved the path to his success and ultimately to the legacy he's left behind. First lesson was to find out what you're good at and become the best at it. He successfully accomplished this goal. Dr. Bresler opened his first pediatric dental office in Roxborough in 1982. Over the next 30 years he was able to expand the practice with additional locations in Dresher, Jenkintown, Newtown Square, South Philly, and Northeast Philadelphia. He quickly became known as "The Kids' Dentist, Kids love to visit".

The second lesson was to always put your patients' needs first and the rewards will follow. The R. Ralph Bresler Memorial Award at Temple University is given to the dental student who most closely follows this moral compass. Dr. Bresler ran his practice with integrity and made sure to instill these values to his children and his thousands of students.

The last lesson was that when climbing the ladder of success there are two ways to get to the top. The first is to step on others along the way and the second is to pull them up the rungs with you. Anyone you ask can attest that David certainly wanted to pull everyone up with him. He continued to mentor and help former students create their own success stories by sharing with them all of his knowledge and experiences.

Dr. Bresler was a pioneer in developing an efficient model of pediatric dental care for all children regardless of their income level. The "Bresler" model of pediatric dental care that he had created is unmatched and will survive as a model for dental care for the world to follow. He was the Owner/Operator or Doc Bresler's Cavity Busters – a 7 location multi-dentist, multi-specialist group practice including pediatric dentistry, general dentistry and orthodontics. He was the owner/founder of Red Lion Surgicenter – the nation's first free standing ambulatory surgicenter devoted exclusively to dental procedures. He also established Special Touch Dentistry – a dental practice dedicated to providing the highest quality dental care to adults with special needs.

Dr. Bresler was a committed teacher and mentor to countless students who had the opportunity to work beside him and under his thoughtful guidance. Generations of dentists – and their patients – will continue to benefit from his commitment to the dental profession for many years to come. He was a Clinical Associate Professor at Temple University Kornberg School of Dentistry and often lectured at the University of Pennsylvania School of Dental Medicine, Harcum College, and Manor College. He was an active staff member at St. Christopher's Hospital for Children and Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. He was a spokesperson for the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry and often lectured around the country, always well known for his lectures on behavior management.

A true humanitarian, Dr. Bresler was actively involved in the YMCA, the Sunshine Foundation and the Shriners. He also led many dental mission trips to Haiti where thousands of patients with otherwise no access to care received often life-saving dental treatment. His children will continue to lead the Haiti Project in honor of their father.

His interests included going to flea markets, restoring antique cars, Corvette club, and spending time down the shore. He also had the world's largest DAB (his initials) beer memorabilia collection, which is ironic since he's never had a beer in his life. Most important to David though was spending time with his family. A truly devoted husband, father and grandfather, he showered his wife, children and grandchildren, and all of their friends, with unconditional love. Dr. Bresler never said he was going to work, rather he was going to play. His passion for helping others was infectious and all three of his children - Josh, Jason and Rachel all followed in his footsteps to pursue careers in children's dentistry.

Dr. Bresler lived life to the fullest, treasuring every moment spent with family, friends, colleagues and students. The impact that he made on this world will be celebrated for countless years to come.

Donations may be sent to the Sunshine Foundation (www.sunshinefoundation.org - 1041 Mill Creek Drive, Feasterville, PA 19053) or Temple Dental Haiti Club (3223 N. Broad Street, Philadelphia, PA 19140).
